Doug: The Water Districts are withholding their comments until they see a review of the Pace Report by EPA. While I only very briefly looked at the letter it appears to directly respond to comments/assertions in the report. I would really like to see a separate evaluation of the report. FYI – we have a Newsday Inquiry on a variety of Grumman topics, including the CSIA study. My draft response this morning (sent to Bob) said that the WD's had deferred comments until EPA's review was reviewed I'm not sure that I would change my suggested response based on this letter. In any event, I'm going to send out the letter to the WD's, EPA and Navy. Should I characterize it as a response to Grumman's comments or a response to Grumman's comments mixed with EPA's review? I think that the WD's are expecting more than this. You promised them a review of the report . Call me if you want to discuss. Jim H

Hi Jim

Jon Gabry reviewed the Pace CSIA report. He has also reviewed the Northrop Grumman (June 24, 2016) and Navy comments (transmitted to you on May 17, 2016) on the Pace CSIA report and had a conversation with Pat McLoughlin of Pace.

Attached you will find Jon's comments on the Northrop Grumman comment letter. The Northrop Grumman comment letter was very detailed relative to the more broad brush comments from the Navy. Jon thought that the Northrop Grumman letter would provide a useful platform for him to both comment on the Northrop Grumman's perspective and share his own thoughts on the CSIA work done to date, as well as any future work that may be performed/considered.

Jon can be available for further discussions if you have any questions.

Thanks

Doug
